CRIMINAL COURT.—The Wigneam Rioters on Trial.—Yesterday morning, John B. Floyd, late Secretary of War, charged with being concerned in the abstraction of the Indian trust bonds from the Interior Department, appeared in court, and bail was entered in the sum of $8,000, by Mesers. Thomas Green, R. H. Hughes, and William T. Smithson, for his appearance.

The court then rendered its decision on the plea of demurrer entered by the counsel in the case of W. H. Rossell, charged with complicity in the abstraction of the Indian bonds. The plea entered was founded on a late law of Congress, which provides that an person shall be prosecuted for any offence when he has once been examined by a committee of Congress. The defence having proved, from the records of the committee, that Russell had been examined before the committee in reference to this case, the court decided that he could not be tried for the offence, and ordered the inictment to be quashed.

The trial of the Wigwam cases was then re-aumed:

Alfred Henning, sworn: Was an officer, and on the night of the attack went over to the Wigwam with other officers; met a crowd coming out; Lieut. McHenry went in ahead of the officers, and ordered the door to be closed; the gas was burning in the southeast room on the lower floor; went in, and lighted the gas, after some one had turned it off; saw nothing inside the building but the crowd, the only one of whom he knew was Joseph Creager; he was standing on the steps, but was not doing anything. The door was closed about twenty minutes, and Lieut. McHenry gave orders to arrest all who were in the building. Witness arrested a man named Burleigh, who he took arrested a man named Burieign, who he took to the watch-house. He, however, turned out to be an employee of the Wigwam, and was discharged. All he heard Creager say was, "If you are going to arrest us, why don't you do it? I am tired of waiting here." There was a great noise outside of the building; and some stones were thrown, breaking the windows, at the time be was relighting the gas; did not see any one with a bust.

By Mr. Davidge: He made no arrest outside the building; no shots were fired outside while he was there. The only language he heard Creager use was in reference to his as rest. All was very quiet inside the building.

John Alleorn, sworn: Was at the Wigwam when the meeting adjourned; went over to the corner of C and Second streets; while there, heard a shout; several officers came up, and a man with him asked them to go and stop the riot. The man went over with the officers and he went into the crowd, who were shouting and flinging stones at the building. Some were going in, and he followed them into the building; did not recognise any of the crowd outside; saw Creager coming towards the door, with a piece of transparency; Creager was in the Wigwam room, in the second story. First saw the crowd as he was standing at the corner of C and Second streets; his attention was first attracted by hearing the stones against the windows. Witness stayed until the watch came, and was taken to the watch-house.

By Mr. Davidge: Sewell, King, and Sinclair, were on the corner with him; did not notice the crowd until he heard the noise. When he went over, he did not recognise any one outside; pistols were being fired and stones being thrown when he was in the crowd. Creager said nothing when he saw him; he had in his hands a piece of canvass about five or six feet wide and piece of canvass about five or six feet wide and eight or ten feet long; was bringing it toward the front of the building. The meeting was public and open to all, as he understood. When witness left, did not observe whether the lights were burning or not. The night was rather dark. When witness went back to the Wigwam, two lights were burning in the second story

John Tolson, sworn: Was on the avenue the night of the election; was at the Breckinridge headquarters; a report came in while he was there, that some of their men had been imposed They all came out, and some of them imed, "Let's kill the d-d Republican exclaimed, "Let's kill the d—d Republicans—ns of b—s. Dr. Cleary and Dr. Willet were the only ones he knew in the crowd. Went up behind the procession to the Trinity church; they went over to the Wigwam, and he stopped at the church until the watch came along, then went along behind them over in the crowd. Saw Cleary and Willet in the crowd; eard one of them give the order, " fall in, Vol They went over to the building, and vitness heard stones being thrown and pistols

By Mr. Davidge: was at the room about half an hour before the repot came in that some of their men had been impossed upon; was right alongside of Dr. Cleary; did not see Cleary or Willet in the crowd coming up. Dont know how many shots were fired: waited at the church until the police came along, and followed after them. Was with Vernon on that night; he had never said that he would not ap-pear if anybody would give him a suit of clothes; he had told some young men in the market, who wanted him to go away with them, that he would so if he had that he would go if he had any money, and one of them told him to go to Dr. Willet, and he would get the money; John Byran and Corne-lious Desmond were the ones who wanted him to go away with them. Officer Ashe, sworn: On the night of the lection, a party came down and said they were going to cut or gut the Wigwam out; went with Donaldson up to Lieutenant McHenry; found a man drunk, when Lieutenant McHenry ordered them to take him to the watch-house there were about two hundred people there, ma king every kind of noise, throwing stones and firing pistols; the crowd at the time was mostly on the other side of the street when he ar rested the man. He heard some cries from the crowd of "Burn the d-d place down." Heard Dr. Cleary say something about National Volunteers; they all dispersed; did not recognise any one except Cleary; saw some of them trying to get something out of the win-dow; some one came out of the building with a piece of canvas wrapped around his shoul-ders; heard the cry of "set the place on fire"

By Mr. Davidge: Stopped at the corner of Indiana avenue and Third street; when they went over, heard four or five shots; don't know whether any shots were fired after they got on Second street; witness thought that he could have recognised a person ten feet off; the only person he recognised was Dr. Cleary, who seemed to be quiet; thinks transparencies were after the crowd reached there. Martin Buell, sworn : The Republicans held a meeting at the Wigwam on election night, for the purpose of hearing the returns; after the meeting adjourned, witness saw to putting out the gas; all the lights were extinguished ex cepting a light in the room on the first floor which was simply turned down; went into the street; saw a large crowd coming toward the building; the front part seemed to be marching in a line, but the rear was a large crowd; as they came, heard them exclaim, "Kill the d—d black Republican s—s of b— s," with other kindred cries; went back in the building, and locked the door; went on up stairs, and heard the balls breaking the windows; kept on re-ceding until he reached the roof; as soon as the noise subsided, ventured down; found the office in a bad fix ; the types were all knocked into pi; in the lower room the transparencies had been trampled under foot, several of the benches were broken, and one had been thrown in the street; the glazier's bill amounted to $64 for replacing the glass and painting over the screens which had been hattered.

By Mr. Davidge: Mr. Downey was the painter who was placed.

who we employed to reginze the windows. The screens which were broken were of wire, set in wooden frames; they were used to prevent the windows from being broken by stones. One bench, the doors of a book-case, and some rough tables, were thrown out in the street and b ken; thinks there were three transparencies broken and trampled upon; several panels of the doors were also broken. A civil suit has been commenced in the Circuit Court for dambeen commenced in the Circuit Court for damages. First saw the crowd coming back of the church; went back in the building and locked the door; then went up on the roof of the building; Messra. Clephane, Foos, Hendley, and Ockstadt, were also on the building. His impression was, that it was a cloudy night, and the moon was shining behind the clouds. Does not think that any effort was made to stop the crowd; thinks he would have perceived it.

Officer J. F. King, sworn: Went to the Wig wam in advance of the other officers; went di rectly to the crowd, and ordered them to disperse; at the same time, heard a noise at the door; went over, and McHenry ordered him to take a man, who was very drunk, to the watch-house; Scarf, Ashe, and himself, took the man to the watch-house; did not hear a report of a pistol; saw a young man pick up a stone to throw at the building; told him to put it down, which he did. After he took Johnson to the watch-house, he did not return.

By Mr. Davidge: Johnson was very drunk; has known him several years; did not recog-nise him until he got to the City Hall. By Mr. Ould: Did not have any difficulty in recognising the young man who had the stone in his hand.

William Cleaver, sworn : Came up to Telegraph Office; heard a crowd were going up to hear the returns; when he got up to the corner of Indiana avenue and Third street, heard a report of a pistol; some one said, "Come on, boys;" thinks it was Dr. Cleary; was at Birth's corner; don't know any who passed in the crowd; the first pistol was fired near Baldwin's old shop; don't think it came from the crowd in which Dr. Cleary was; thinks that it was from a crowd in advance; there were about 30 persons in the crowd which Cleary seemed to command; he was within ten feet of the man who fired, but could not recognise any one of them; he was at the corner of Third street, in any with Mesers. Mr. Davidge: When he reached Second street, the majority of the crowd had got there; did not see the flash of the first pistol.

By Mr. Ould: The canvas the man had was a piece of the transparency. He did not strike the man or resist the officer.

Officer Donaldson aworn: When he reached the Wigwam found the crowd very noisy; ar-rested a young man, a clerk in Shuster's dry goods store. When he first reached there, the men were running, and cries were raised that the police were coming. Don't know of any efforts being made by any persons except the police to disperse the crowd.

William Hendley, sworn: A fight took place at Brown's Hotel on election night, and the crowd moved off from there, exclaiming, "now for the Wigwam." Witness went to the Wigwam, and the meeting adjourned. When the crowd came up, he went up on the roof in company with others. Most of those who went from Brown's he knows by sight, but does not know the names. When he was on the building, heard the rallying cry of "O you National Volun-teers" and "burn the building down;" when he heard these cries, he got ready to come down by the lightning rod.

At this stage of the trial the court adjourned. NOVEL RESOLUTIONS .- The following resolu tions of thanks to a noted notion dealer on
